CARE CONTRACT IS CANCELLED AFTER TV EXPOSÉ

Council gets tough as film highlights serious failures

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A PRIVATE company which Haringey Council paid to provide home care for sick and elderly residents has had its contract terminated after serious shortcomings were exposed in a TV documentary.

Town hall chiefs acted after a joint investigation by the Sunday Times and Channel 4's Despatches programme showed carers from the Haringey branch of Sevacare turning up late or not at all for home visits, falsifying time logs and failing to follow care plans.

The council confirmed, following the screening last week, that it had stopped all new placements and had advised all existing clients not to use the agency.

The Care Quality Commission, the independent watchdog for health and social care services, shut down the Haringey branch of Sevacare last month after the service it provided was found to be "unsafe" and "inadequate."

Before its de-registration, however, the Wolverhampton-based company transferred its Haringey clients to its Tower Hamlets branch in east London, where a CQC inspection last year also found safety concerns.

A Haringey Council spokesman said it had praised concerns previously with the CQC about Sevacare.

"We were extremely disappointed to learn of practices at Sevacare which fall well below the high standards we expect in Haringey," he said.

"Given our ongoing concerns we will no longer be paying any funds to Sevacare and we will be advising all existing clients not to use them," he added.

"They were so serious we used

'Unacceptable': Andrea Sutcliffe, from the CQC

Andrea Sutcliffe, chief inspector of adult social care at the Care Quality Commission, said the practices uncovered by the TV investigation were "completely unacceptable" and underlined her organisation's own concerns.

"A review of all its branches was being conducted, the statement added, to ensure it provided "the best possible care."

our toughest enforcement powers to close it down," she said.

She also expressed misgivings at the agency's transfer of the care of Haringey residents to its Tower Hamlets branch and confirmed that a further inspection would be carried out shortly.

In a statement Sevacare apologised for the failure of "individual carers" to meet its high standards and said that action had been taken to suspend those involved.

It claimed it had contacted those featured in the TV investigation and they had confirmed they were "happy" with the day-to-day support they had received, demonstrating, it said, that they were "isolated examples, rather than common practice."

Campaigners seek to raise online funds to stop festival

AN online crowd-funding bid has been launched by a park users' group seeking to stop the Wireless music festival returning to Finsbury Park this summer.

The Friends of Finsbury Park have set up a page on the Crowdjustice website appealing for donations to pay for a judicial review of Haringey Council's decision to stage the three-day event again on July 8, 9 and 10.

Campaigners are afraid that if it goes ahead, there will be a recurrence of last year's problems when visitors and residents were excluded from large areas of the park for weeks on end by an eight-foot-high perimeter fence, while major disruption, damage and anti-social behaviour caused by the 50,000 festival-goers will again ensue.

They say they are not against the festival, but the vast scale makes the park an unsuitable location.

The campaign's online target is £5,000, which will be put towards the estimated £35,000 cost of the High Court challenge.

Tom Palin, chairman of Friends of Finsbury Park, said: "The outcome of this case could affect all the capital's parks as councils seek to sell off and privatise green spaces.

"The argument that huge commercial events such as Wireless festival must take place in order to provide a source of income to maintain a public space is deeply Closed off: The security fence around last year's festival site in Finsbury Park disturbing and cannot be allowed to happen," he added.

The council's overview and scrutiny committee conducted a review last summer of the way such major events are managed with greater engagement with residents and community groups among its key recommendations.

Broker jailed for insurance scam

A FRAUDULENT broker who sold fictitious insurance policies to pocket thousands in commission fees has been given a 12-month suspended jail sentence.

Insurance agent Bandagu Mankeze, 52, of Church Lane, Hornsey, used false names and addresses as well as details of genuine people who had not agreed to take out a policy.

And he cheekily put down his own address on some of the 30 policies he submitted to Eunisure insurance company, for whom he worked as a self-employed agent.

The scam came to light when many of the policies, which were taken out between July, 2014, and March, 2015, were cancelled.

The agreement with the insurers meant any commission fee the agent earned had to be paid back if the policy was cancelled within two years of being taken out.

When confronted by his managers, Mankeze confessed to falsifying the policies and agreed to refund the £7,200 he made from the scam.

But when he paid back only £700, he was reported to the Insurance Fraud Enforcement Department, a specialist unit tackling insurance fraud run by City of London police.

He confessed, admitting he committed the fraud because of money troubles.

He pleaded guilty to fraud at the Old Bailey and received a 12-month prison sentence, suspended for two years. He was also ordered to carry out 120 hours of unpaid community work and pay £6,590 in compensation.

Two jailed over killing of woman beaten to death

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

TWO women have been jailed for the killing of a woman at a house party in Bush Hill Park last year.

Kinse Aidid, 21, was found guilty by a jury at the Old Bailey on Friday of murdering 27-year-old Hamdi Jumale, of Linnet Close, Edmonton, in a flat in Gainsborough House, on the Ayley Croft estate. She was sentenced to life imprisonment and will serve a minimum of 15 years.

Magdalene Agathine, 21, was found guilty of manslaughter and was jailed for nine years.

During the trial, a charge of murder against the victim's 34-year-old former boyfriend, Walid Ibrahim, of Church Street, Edmonton, was dismissed.

When officers were called to reports of a dead woman at the flat just after 9pm on September 17, they found Hamdi's body lying in a bedroom in the flat, covered in blood and bruising.

A postmortem examination revealed that she had been beaten to death.

She had arrived at the flat for a party on Sunday, September 13.

At some point afterwards, she became involved in an argument with Aidid, from Newham, east London.

On the night of Wednesday, September 16, Hamdi was captured on CCTV and seen by witnesses caught up in a violent struggle with Aidid outside the entrance of Gainsborough House.

Both women were seen returning inside the flat.

Shortly beforehand Hamdi had called a friend to say she was having problems with two women in the flat.

In the course of the trial it emerged that police had discovered that Agathine, of no fixed address, had made a call to a friend and had put the phone on loudspeaker – allowing her friend to hear both her and Aidid. She revealed that they had argued with Hamdi and had beaten her "pretty badly".

Detective Chief Inspector David Whellams, of the Met's Homicide and Major Crime Command, said: "Hamdi Jumale suffered a violent death at the hands of Aidid and Agathine, who consistently lied about the events of that night and failed to take responsibility for their actions.

"They lied throughout their interviews and lied to the court in order to distance themselves from the murder."

In action: The Andreas Frangeskides Greek dance school

Festival's taste of Greece

TRADITIONAL folk dances, accompanied by bouzouki music, will bring a flavour of Greece to Enfield's Jacobean mansion when Forty Hall celebrates the biggest day in the Greek Orthodox church's calendar.

The grade 1 listed building in Forty Hill will be marking Pascha next Saturday afternoon (April 23) – a week before the official religious festival.

It's the equivalent of Easter and falls four weeks later than the festival observed by Christians who use the Gregorian calendar.

The borough has more than 18,000 residents of Greek or Greek Cypriot heritage, many of whom will be familiar with the activities and workshops which are inspired by the customs and traditions of a Greek Orthodox Easter and are being held throughout the day.

They include decorating eggs, candle making and paper flower making. Visitors get to explore the estate which surrounds the mansion as part of a special Easter trail and can learn interesting facts about Pascha along the way.

The Andreas Frangeskides Greek dance school will be performing traditional folk dances, while fun workshops will be held by Winchmore Hill-based Asterakia music club to help children learn about Greek language and culture.

Forty Hall spokeswoman Elizabeth Elias said: "We have many visitors to Forty Hall from the Greek community, so we wanted to do something extra-special in celebration of Pascha this year. Pascha is a very family-oriented celebration, so this event will cater for families and young children."

Admission is free with workshops costing £3 per child and the event runs from noon to 4pm.

Don't be silly: The police tweet

'You end up looking silly,' cops tell dope smokers

POLICE have told drug takers, and tokers, in the borough that dropping spliffs at the first sight of law enforcement is seriously damaging their street cred.

According to a tweet posted by Enfield Police last Thursday, smokers with lungs full of dope are fooling no one when they drop half-smoked joints to the ground in full view of police officers.

The tweet said: "Dear weed smokers in N9 (Edmonton). When we arrive don't freeze and drop your spliffs at your feet – it looks silly".

The "silly" smokers are unlikely to be arrested if it is the first time they are caught green-handed as evidence of cannabis use results in police issuing a warning, carrying out a full search and a police national computer check.

More than one penalty will lead to a fixed penalty notice of £60.

A third contravention will lead to an arrest.

However, a spokesman from the Met stressed that more is at risk than just being laughed at by the boys and girls in blue.

He pointed out: "Officers have the option of arrest for possession of cannabis at all three stages."

Cannabis is categorised as a class B drug and a custodial sentence of 28 days can be given to anyone found in possession of the drug three times or more.

Herbie strides again

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

HE'S in his seventh decade – but nothing will stop Enfield's Herbie Williams running his tenth London Marathon this month.

The 61-year-old car mechanic has a nifty engine of his own and will tackle the 26-mile route round the capital on Sunday, April 24.

He won't exactly motor round the course – he hopes to finish in about six hours – but by the time he crosses the line he will have raised more than £15,000 for Sense, the charity he started running for back in 2009.

Herbie, of Southbury Road, said: "I did three marathons in the 1990s and then came back in 2009 and started running them for Sense. My best total so far is nearly £3,000, which I raised in 2014."

"There's no secret to marathon running, and it gets harder as you get older."

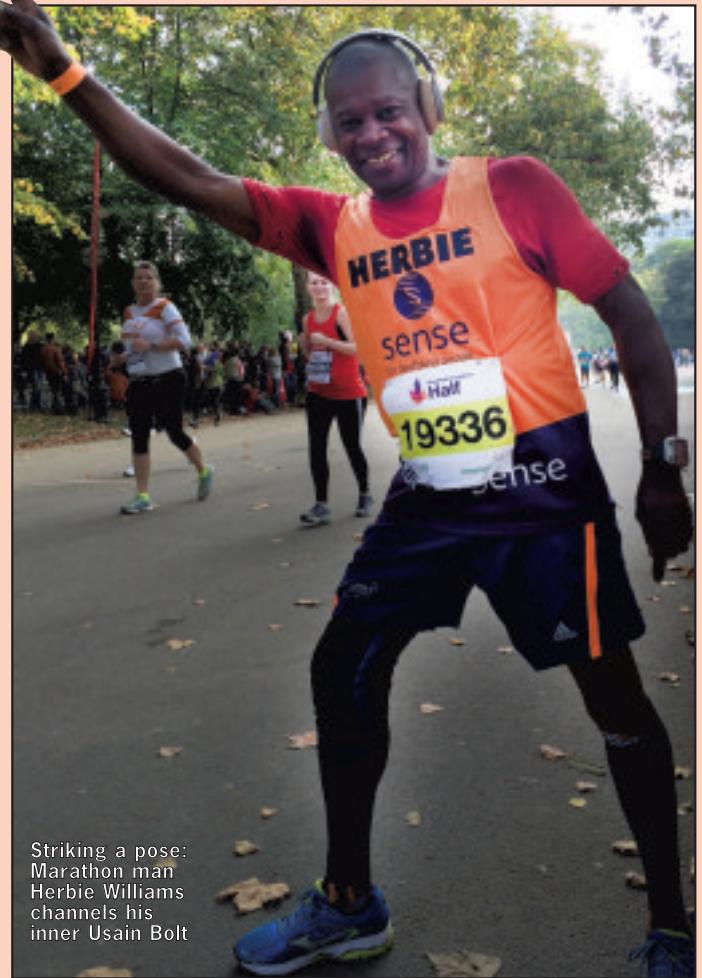

"You've just got to the training, the long runs and know that you can run for a long time."

"The best thing about the London Marathon is the atmosphere. If you get to 15 miles and you are feeling good, then you can absorb the atmosphere."

"But if you don't feel good at that point, then it's harder. But I love the challenge and it's a great feeling crossing the finish line."

Sense is a charity that helps deafblind children and adults enjoy life by overcoming the isolation they feel.

DENTURE WEARERS

If you are a denture wearer then this article may be of some interest to you! If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

- DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:
  - Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
  - Are they loose?
  - Do not cut food as well as they used to?
  - Do they make your face look older?
  - Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
  - Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

ALL-singing, all-dancing youngsters put on a sparkling show to mark the end of their Easter holidays.

Eighty children aged between five and 12 spent a week working on their songs, dances and jokes at Chickenshed Theatre, in Southgate.

Staff at the theatre, in Chase Side, helped the children with their ideas and provided encouragement for the 30-minute entertainment.

And Friday was the big day when all the participants had to conquer their nerves as they performed the show.

Theatre press officer Susan Jamson said: "We run workshops where you can just come along and join in.

"It was amazing. They were only here for a week and they put on the show which they created themselves – it was unique and individual.

"It was packed with parents and I have never seen anything like it."

New bid to revive Broomfield House

Campaigners plan application for grant

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS will meet Lottery funding chiefs this week as part of a long-running fight to restore an historic stately home.

They will be asking for millions of pounds to help save the 16th-century building which was badly damaged by fire in the 1980s and 1990s.

Broomfield House, in Broomfield Park, Palmers Green, is owned by Enfield Council and officials and supporters will be meeting Heritage Lottery Fund chiefs on Friday to discuss applying for a restoration grant for the property in the "low millions".

A previous multi-million-pound plan to restore the site was knocked back by the fund in 2013 because it was reluctant to take a financial risk in restoring the property.

However, campaigners have refused to give up the right and are formulating plans for a new grant application to the Heritage Lottery Fund.

Colin Younger, deputy chairman of the Broomfield House Trust Group, said: "The kind of money we are talking of in excess of £5million for a total rebuild – that was an estimate.

"If we were to get a grant, we would still need more money from other sources.

"Once you start the process and obtain backing, it's easier to go to other bodies and ask for money."

No decisions will be taken at Friday's meeting, but it is the first step in what is likely to be a series of meetings to discuss possible Lottery backing for the restoration.

Mr Younger said that many would like to see a café return to the site – an initiative which would help financially sustain the restored mansion as any Lottery grant would not fully fund restoration.

A consultation carried out last year by the council revealed that more than 70 per cent of residents support a heritage and cultural centre to be somehow incorporated into any restoration project.

Mr Younger added: "People agreed with the trust view that it should also have some sort of arts operation or perhaps rehearsal space in the stable buildings – it would fit in with the character of the park.

"The council has engaged expert consultants who are very positive and we would be looking for a grant in the low millions from the Heritage Lottery Fund.

"The council just does not have the money to fund the cost of rebuilding a listed structure by itself."

Looking ahead: Colin Younger, the deputy chairman of the Broomfield House Trust Group, which will be meeting Heritage Lottery Fund chiefs this week for discussions

Cyclist flown to hospital after collision with car

A CYCLIST with serious injuries was flown to hospital after a collision with a car in Enfield.

The 47-year-old man was hurt in the accident near the junction of Theobalds Park Road and Whitewebbs Road just before 8am on Thursday.

Theobalds Park Road was closed while emergency services including a helicopter medical team attended the scene.

Police say the man's injuries are not life-threatening.

London Ambulance Service said: "We were called on April 7 at 7.51am to reports of a road traffic incident at Theobalds Park Road, Enfield. We sent multiple resources to the scene including an incident response officer, an ambulance crew and London's air ambulance.

"A person with multiple injuries was taken to a nearby hospital for treatment."

Cloudy2Clear Announce Trusted Trader Partnership

Consumer champions Which? have now joined the thousands of customers who recognise that Cloudy2Clear Windows really are a business that you can TRUST. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has received the coveted 'Which Trusted Trader' status after going through a rigorous accreditation process entirely focussed on customer service.

Group Managing Director Marcus McGee believes that Which? have endorsed Cloudy2Clear's long standing company policy of delivering the highest standards possible at all times. 'Our service is simple. If your double glazing has misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Whilst a number of tradespeople perhaps don't focus on customer care as much as they should do, we make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle.'

Locally Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and manager Richard Power agrees that this approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. # Charity collections taken in break-in at social club

A BREAK-IN at a social club has "sickened" drinkers and staff after thieves took two charity collection boxes – one to help the dreams of dying children come true and the other to pay for specialist cancer nurses.

The culprits have been branded "heartless scum" this week.

The collecting tins filled with £300 in donations from drinkers were among the haul stolen from Brimsdown Sports & Social Club, in Goldsdown Road.

The burglars used bolt cutters to get into the premises in the early hours of Sunday, April 3.

They jemmied open the pool table and jukebox stealing the takings from both and cut chains securing the collecting tins on top of the bar before grabbing bottles of spirits from behind it.

"The collecting tins were for Noah's Ark Children's Hospice, which cares for children with terminal illnesses and helps fulfil their dreams by organising special treats, while the other was for Macmillan cancer nurses," said barmaid Jane Plumer.

"To steal money meant for dying children is sickening. They are a disgrace."

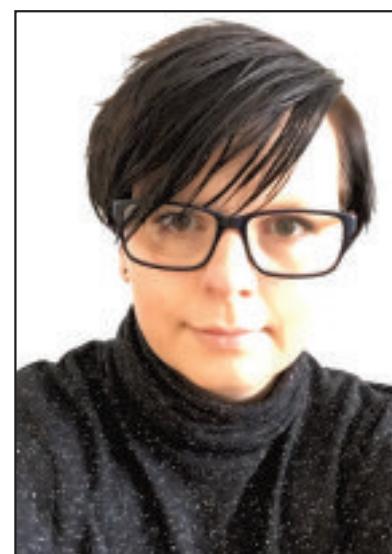

Roger Green, who drinks regularly at the club, said: "Scum is the only word to describe them – they are the lowest of the low."

Retiring: Healthwatch Enfield chief executive Lorna Reith, who is being succeeded by Patricia Mecinska, below tion, said that everyone in the borough owed Ms Reith "a debt of gratitude".

"In a short time, Lorna has made Healthwatch Enfield a credible voice for local people that health and social care stakeholders listen to," she said.

"We will greatly miss her, but are delighted to have Patricia coming on board to continue Lorna's excellent work," she added.

Health chief steps down

THE woman who has been at the forefront of a health lobbying group in the borough has stepped down from her post.

Lorna Reith has been chief executive of Healthwatch Enfield since the patients' group was set up in 2013.

Healthwatch was founded to give a voice to people in the borough about what healthcare provisions they want to see.

As well as referring complaints about health providers, the organisation makes representations to the Clinical Commissioning Group.

After almost three years at the head of the organisation, Ms Reith is stepping down and Enfield resident Patricia Mecinska is moving into the chief executive role, relinquishing her role at London mental health charity MAC-UK.

The outgoing chief said she was "proud" of what she had helped the organisation achieve over the past two-and-a-half years.

"I am proud of what I have helped Healthwatch Enfield to achieve," she said.

"It has been a privilege to hear from people in Enfield about what mattered to them and to have been instrumental in securing improvements across a range of health and care services, including access to screening services, information about GP services, safety for female patients on mental health wards and access to interpreters for deaf people, among other things."

Ms Reith's successor, who has worked in the charity sector for most of her career, said she was aiming to "maintain the momentum that Healthwatch Enfield had built up in helping health and social care services to listen to local people and to take account of their views and experiences."

'Good news': MP David Burrowes

Time to look to the future

I KNOW good news is not always newsworthy, but I think the fact that the government has signed the cheque for £82million paid out to Chase Farm Hospital deserves a bit more of a fanfare.

Chase Farm has suffered from 30 years of uncertainty and unfulfilled promises from previous governments. I am therefore proud that it is a Conservative government which has delivered on its promise before the election to secure the future of Chase Farm Hospital.

The scaremongers before the election who raised fears of Conservatives selling off or closing Chase Farm have been proven to be utterly wrong. I want to pay tribute to my former colleague Nick de Bois, who also helped secure the funds from government for the new hospital.

The Chase Farm site will include state-of-the-art facilities for elective (non-emergency) care, diagnostics, outpatients, an urgent care centre, planned elective surgery and post-operative care, an older persons' assessment unit and rehabilitation facilities. It also has capacity for expansion of services as well as a new primary care facility.

We can all rake over the history about who was to blame for the loss of A&E, but it is time now to look forward to a guaranteed and bright future for Chase Farm Hospital.

Asthmatics shouldn't have to pay for prescriptions

ON April 1, prescription charges in England increased by 20p from £8.20 to £8.40. A 20p increase may not seem much, but the reality is that people with asthma tell us they've had to choose between paying for their prescriptions and paying for food, fuel and household bills.

Any barrier to life-saving medication has the potential to put the lives of millions of people with asthma at risk and people with asthma shouldn't be forced to pay for the prescriptions they need. We are continuing with our campaign to put an end to prescription charges for everyone with a long-term condition as part of the Prescription Charges Coalition.

Until prescription charges are ended, we want the government to raise awareness of schemes such as the Prescription Prepayment Certificates. PPCs are effectively prescription season tickets, which save money for patients who are regularly prescribed a number of prescription items.

If you would like further information on PPCs, please call our expert asthma nurse Helpline on 0300 222 5800 and sign up to our free email newsletter at www.asthma.org.uk/sign-up to hear how you can take action and keep up to date on this and other Asthma UK campaigns.

If you are having an attack and your reliever inhaler is not helping, you should always call 999. Do not be afraid to call for help if you think that you need it.

Our objections have fallen on deaf ears

CAN I offer some advice to residents about to use Enfield Council's planning department? If you wish to appeal against an application or complain about an existing application, you don't stand much chance!

Never try to be reasonable. We made the mistake of agreeing, in principle, to proposals providing there would be some respite from the inevitable noise the application would make. We succeeded in getting limited working hours and no Sunday working to give us a break from any noise.

Not very long after the approval we noticed that not only was the noise pollution worse than we thought, but that the hours agreed were being exceeded. We complained to the council.

That's when we discovered that the planning department has another branch, the mistakenly named planning enforcement department.

We were given a lengthy form to fill in telling them how and where, what the weather was like, how many hours it affected us, etc, etc. This had to be done for weeks. Why? They were working hours outside of the planning permission, breaking the rules.

After months of complaining, we found out that the "culprits" had applied for, and been granted, an extension of their hours – with no further recourse to us. Even with these extended hours, they still exceeded them.

More complaints, more weeks of form filling and the "culprits" were visited by the "enforcers" and given a slapped wrist and a warning. A few weeks on, they were back to their old tricks. And so it went on. In fact, it is still going on. Due to ill health I can no longer continue the form-filling and told the council "enforcers" as much. Another summer full of noise, or, alternatively shut all windows and doors – more than five years on.

Libraries are no longer places which offer peace and quiet

WHEVER I wanted to go to a place offering peace and quiet reflection, the local library would have been my first choice – not so nowadays.

Sometimes I yearn for libraries of old (even taking musty old books into consideration) for the safe environment they provided, where I could read or just sit and take time out from the hubbub of daily life.

The only noises to be heard were the padding of shoes or heels tapping across the polished floors, the occasional cough or sneeze and the hush and finger on lips from the librarian if the talking was above a whisper.

We are told that in recent years library footfall has reduced drastically and to make them viable places we need to reinvent their purpose.

Now they are being transformed into "community hubs", where you can eat and drink while perusing pages. No longer a formal place of sanctuary and order where people respected other people's right to a bit of peace and quiet conducive to study or contemplation, they have become a free for all for eating, drinking encouraging the kids to let off steam and talking as loudly as you desire.

Libraries as I knew them have had their day and I miss them. Golden silence only remains as a fond memory.

People aren't the only ones affected by domestic abuse

THE nation has found itself gripped by the depiction of domestic abuse in The Archers, a storyline that has just reached a dramatic conclusion.

Here at the Dogs Trust we commend the scriptwriters for highlighting a much-ignored issue.

Dogs Trust has first-hand experience of domestic abuse having run the Freedom Project for the past 12 years.

It is an initiative that supports people with pets who struggle to leave an abusive relationship.

Research has shown that people are more likely to stay with a violent partner if they have a pet as they fear that their partner will harm their pet if they were to leave.

The dedicated Freedom Project team helps families fleeing domestic abuse by placing their dog in temporary foster care.

This gives them the freedom to leave safe in the knowledge that once they are settled and safe, they will then be reunited with their much-loved pet.

The Dogs Trust Freedom Project has just helped its 1,000th family, but we rely heavily on volunteers to foster these dogs.

If you have found yourself touched by The Archers storyline and feel compelled to help people experiencing domestic violence, please consider registering as a Freedom Project foster carer or making a donation today.

If you are a person affected by domestic abuse and you are afraid that your pet is also in danger, you can contact Dogs Trust for advice and support by emailing freedomproject@dogstrust.org.uk or by calling 0800 298 9199.

The Freedom Project currently operates across Yorkshire and greater London.

Calls for a rethink over ticket offices

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THE group representing rail passengers in London has asked a train company to think again about shutting ticket offices at two stations in the borough.

London TravelWatch said it was not able to support Govia Thameslink's proposals and wants a "more considered" plan to be tested.

Govia says it will take "feedback" on board as it looks to close ticket offices it says are not used often enough.

London TravelWatch opposes plans for ticket offices at Palmers Green and Winchmore Hill stations to be shut and replaced by "station hosts".

It had 8,000 responses to a consultation on the train operators' latest plans for the service through both stations and beyond. Issues it flagged up include:

- The reliability of ticket machines and the ability to buy all types of tickets.

- Exactly how and when station staff would work and when they would be available.

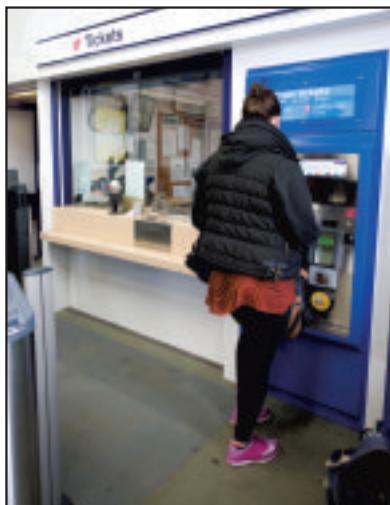

- The ability of staff to handle cash transactions.

The watchdog believes ticket offices should be open at busy times of the week.

Govia said it would extend staffing hours by more than 2,600 a week and put new station "hosts" where passengers want them – on the concourse to help with ticket sales and queries.

Keith Jipps, for Govia Thameslink Railway, said: "We welcome this constructive feedback and will be considering our proposals in the light of what has been said."

"We will be improving our smartcard to encourage more people to buy online and will be

Think again: The ticket office at Palmers Green station is scheduled for closure launching an Oyster-like, pay-as-you-go version, which will guarantee the cheapest walk-up fare for the day. The station hosts would be able to handle cash transactions just as our ticket offices do today.

"All our proposals are based on careful analysis of the current demand at our station ticket offices and changes would only be phased in by testing the station host approach at one or two stations initially."

'Restructuring' provokes fears for playground

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

TEENAGERS could be on the verge of losing another activity scheme.

The Florence Hayes adventure playground, in Fore Street, Edmonton, is run by Enfield Council's play service and caters for young children and teenagers.

As well as the usual trappings of an adventure playpark, including swings, an assault course and climbing pillars, there is an outdoor cooking area and an allotment where older children and teenagers can learn to grow their own food, as well as an indoor games area. The playground opened in 2010 and now its future is in doubt as the council is in the process of "restructuring" the play service. Many users have interpreted this as the death knell for the playground.

Uncertain future: The Florence Hayes adventure playground, in Fore Street, Edmonton, which opened in 2010

However, a spokesman for the council stressed that there were no immediate plans to shut the play area. He added that staff were being consulted over the future of the play service.

The uncertainty over the playground's future comes just weeks after the council came under fire for swinging cuts to its youth service, with after-school and summer activities, Duke of Edinburgh schemes and youth intervention programmes all being axed.

Community worker and volunteer Rick Jewell, of Hoe Lane, Enfield, warns that if the playground and activity centre close, teenagers who use it will "end up sitting indoors".

"Those kids won't get into trouble, they are already doing well if they are engaging with these services, but it means that they don't have anywhere to go after school," he said.

He is urging the community to step up and make sure teenagers don't lose out on the opportunities as a result of the cuts.

"When you look around, there are lots of people who run youth football teams and clubs," he added. "It's just how we all come together and make it work on a large scale."

Ayfer Orhan, the council's cabinet member for children and young people, dismissed suggestions that the playground would close.

She said: "The Florence Hayes adventure playground is an important play space for children in this part of the borough and it is certainly not closing. It is available for play activities after school and at weekends."

Winchmore Hill based domiciliary care agency, Home Care Preferred, will be doing their bit for charity once again on Saturday 16th of April. Off the back of numerous successful music events for charity in the past the team will be hosting a blue's night in aid of the fantastic charity Noah's Ark Children's Hospice, who provide vital community hospice services to children with life-limiting and life-threatening conditions and their families in North London. There will be a range of great musicians playing including Riff Raff Blues Band and London Blusion, and a licensed bar from 7.30pm until 11pm with reasonably priced wine, beers and soft drinks. Home Care Preferred's Community Relations Manager, Laura Brassett, has stated 'Home Care Preferred's charity music events are always great fun for all involved, and its amazing the level of talent we get to play - the musicians at this upcoming event have played with the likes of Eric Clapton and Amy Winehouse! It's such an amazing charity we are raising funds for and we're hoping to raise a substantial amount to help them continue their life-changing work'

Getting on their bikes (after unfolding them)

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

"I'M still yet to see somebody who doesn't get on a bike and at least lightly smile," says Diego Padilla as the square in Enfield Town fills with children racing around on bikes of every description.

Diego, who owns his own cycle training and bike repair business, was helping the London Cycling Campaign at the Cycling Fair in the town on Friday, helping curious passers-by try out every kind of bike, from small folding Bromptons, to sturdy Dutch bikes and cargo bikes with room for two children to perch at the front.

"People are very curious about the folding bikes," he said.

"People don't know if they ride like a normal bike and they look a little bit strange, but sometimes a folding bike is what people need."

Enfield Council is hoping to install cycle lanes in the town. The plans, which would see traffic flow reduced, have been met with opposition from shopkeepers and Diego admitted one woman had confronted him with her concerns about the scheme.

"There was a woman who was here this morning," he said. "She was a keen cyclist, but she said: 'I don't agree with what they're trying to do with the roads.'

"You know it's difficult," he added and admitted that even for people keen to see safer roads for cycling it was "a learning curve".

"You can't predict what's going to happen, what the dynamics of the road are going to be exactly."

"Some people are going to be affected, but in London the amount of cars for the population is not sustainable so we need to change the balance. There are going to be sacrifices."

But he said that people should not see the roads as a theatre of war between drivers and cyclists.

"Drivers and cyclists need to look after each other all the time," he said.

"We have to share the roads. I think considering the amount of space we've given to cars, where you have to stand in the middle of the road on an island waiting to cross, putting some cycling lanes in is a good thing."

We need to join up, says transport chief

THE changes to main roads under the Cycle Enfield scheme cannot be seen in "isolation", a Transport for London design chief told a packed conference room last week.

Brian Deegan, the principal technical specialist for TfL, used a series of slides to show delegates at the Cycling Towards A Better Enfield conference that the vision behind the plans to transform major arteries of the borough into protected through roads stems from a need to create a "joined up" infrastructure.

"One of the biggest barriers to people cycling in the borough is the amount of difficult crossing points," he said at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, on Friday morning.

He added that the Cycle Enfield plans were particularly "sophisticated" because they contained a vision of getting people cycling on roads around the borough as a matter of course.

"You cannot look at these plans in isolation," he said. "Having a bike lane in one area would not make people who don't currently cycle any more likely to get on their bikes and so there would not be the uptake in cycling across the borough."

The council is hoping that the plans will protect cyclists and vulnerable road users – making everyone more likely to cycle for short journeys, thereby reducing air pollution and helping residents get healthier and more active.

Wheely good fun: Will Antwi and his eight-year-old daughter Blue Bartlett-Antwi try out a bike at the Cycling Fair in Enfield Town

What's the difference?

By Adrian Colley
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

LONDON'S cycling tsar Andrew Gilligan has come under fire as the debate over plans for the centre of Enfield Town hots up.

The Save Our Green Lanes campaign says Mr Gilligan opposed a cycling plan for Greenwich which it says was similar to one he favours in the Enfield scheme.

But Mr Gilligan – London's cycling commissioner in charge of promoting cycling in the capital – rejects the claims and says he would oppose any plans for Enfield which mirrored the scheme he objected to in Greenwich, in south London.

Save Our Green Lanes committee member Helen Osman said: "Mr Gilligan has given many media interviews and spoken at public meetings, including one in Enfield, where he has denied there will be any significant negative repercussions as a result of the cycle lane building programme.

"Yet what happened when Transport for London proposed radical changes to the roads in his backyard?"

Ms Osman says that in 2009 Mr Gilligan argued that the suggested changes would only remove traffic from a relatively small part of Greenwich, but increase traffic in the centre.

But she says: "Yet this is exactly what Mr Gilligan is insisting should happen in Enfield Town, where Church Street, which runs through the centre of the town, is to be closed to all traffic other than buses and cycles, sending all other traffic around narrow Cecil Road.

"This option has been resoundingly rejected by residents and businesses alike."

Campaigners say that Enfield Council is forcing through proposals for cycle lanes along the A105 (Green Lanes) between Enfield Town and Palmers Green which will remove bus lanes and bus stops and require buses to stop in the carriageway.

Ms Osman added: "We have been told that the proposed cycle lane schemes will reduce congestion and pollution, without a shred of evidence to back up these assertions."

Save Our Green Lanes is demanding a rethink of the cycle schemes and said: "The plans have been overwhelmingly rejected by the people who live, work and shop in Enfield. It's time for the mayor and his cycling tsar to respect our views."

Mr Gilligan said: "I opposed the Greenwich scheme because it would have funnelled all traffic into the main shopping streets, not out of them."

"It was the equivalent, in Enfield terms, of closing Cecil Road and funnelling all the traffic in both directions into Church Street.

"If such a thing were proposed for Enfield, I'd oppose that too."

Goldsmith unveils free parking plan

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

IF London elects Zac Goldsmith as mayor, shopkeepers in Enfield Town may well feel that their prayers have finally been answered.

The latest proposal from the Conservative candidate for next month's mayoral election is that he will give Enfield Council a grant to cover the cost of 30 minutes of free parking in Church Street and Southbury Road for one year, using savings he has found in City Hall's budget to fund the scheme.

The scheme would run for one year and utilise existing parking bays. However, the proposals to ease parking restrictions directly clash with the local authority's Cycle Enfield plans, which will see cycle lanes installed in both Church Street and Southbury Road.

With fewer parking bays, and a Transport for London push to get people using "active transport" – such as walking and cycling – there are concerns that Mr Goldsmith's proposals would result in a serious conflict with the council, as well as his own team at TfL.

Out and about: Zac Goldsmith in Enfield Town with Nick Boles, the government minister of state for skills

Mr Goldsmith, who visited Enfield Town last Thursday afternoon with Nick Boles, the minister of state for skills, said: "I'm absolutely committed to making cycling provision in Enfield work, but I'm not convinced that the borough has brought residents or businesses with them sufficiently.

"I'm absolutely committed to seeing a step change in cycling and on my watch I will continue Boris's investment in cycling. I've already made that pledge, but it's got to be done in a way that works for businesses and the community. I don't believe it helps to have a completely stubborn approach."

As a result, Mr Goldsmith says he is prepared to go against free market orthodoxy by offering businesses a helping hand.

He explained: "Shopkeepers are up against it – high rents and big rates – and they are struggling. Of course, the dynamic has changed – but there is no doubt that the extra support is needed for our high streets."

Khan targets capital's growing housing crisis

Labour's mayoral candidate proposes London Living Rent

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

LABOUR'S London mayoral candidate Sadiq Khan used a visit to the borough last week to highlight the issue of the housing crisis in the capital – and float the idea of a city-wide living rent.

Mr Khan, who is hoping to succeed Boris Johnson following the election on May 5, made his remarks on Thursday during a tour of the Alma Estate, in Ponders End, where a regeneration scheme is transforming former gas board land into new homes.

Mr Khan navigated the bare staircases between breeze block walls of the Dujardin Mews development (named after Enfield's equestrian Olympic gold medallist Charlotte Dujardin), in Gardiner Close, which has been commissioned by Enfield Council and is being built by Durkhan Construction as part of a multi-million-pound redevelopment of the estate – best known for its iconic, pastel-coloured tower blocks, which loom large next to the River Lee.

The local authority has pointed out that these are the first council homes to be built in the borough in 30 years – but given that they are replacing accommodation which is scheduled to be torn down, people are likely to be left on the housing waiting list.

As an example of how the housing crisis is squeezing Enfield, currently on the First Steps websites, a portal for people seeking affordable properties to rent at 20 per cent less than the market rate, the only one-bedroom property on offer is in Poppy Drive, off Southbury Road, for £720 per calendar month – and potential renters must have an income of more than £26,000 to qualify, in a ward in which 26 per cent of households have an income of less than £15,000.

Mr Khan declared: "It's not possible, forget on an average salary, but on a good salary to be able to afford to live in London.

"If I was elected mayor, I

Home visitors: Sadiq Khan, flanked by Kate Osamor, MP for Edmonton, left, and Joanne McCartney, London Assembly member for Enfield and Haringey would implement the London Living Rent, which is not going to be 80 per cent of the market value, or like these ludicrous homes that [Conservative candidate] Zac Goldsmith is championing that cost £450,000. My living rent would be a third of average earnings.

"So, for example, if the average income in Enfield is £1,800 a month, the living rent would be £600 a month."

The other candidates in the election are Sian Berry (Green Party), David Furness (British National Party), George Galloway (Respect), Paul Golding (Britain First), Lee Harris (Cannabis is Safer Than Alcohol), Ankit Patel (One Love Party), Caroline Pidgeon (Liberal Democrats), Sophie Walker (Women's Equality Party), Peter Whittle (UKIP) and Prince Zylinski (Independent).

Soul survivors: The Real Thing, comprising Eddie and Chris Amoo and Dave Smith, are performing at Millfield Theatre

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

WHEN it comes to UK disco legends, 1970s' soul band The Real Thing are the genuine article, having sold three million singles.

You to Me Are Everything – one of the biggest international dance hits of all time – is among a string of chart-toppers the band produced.

Can't Get by Without You, Whenever You Want My Love and the fantastically catchy Can You Feel the Force, are among other top ten entries.

All their hits, along with cover versions of well-known soul and funk classics, will be performed by The Real Thing when the band plays Edmonton's Millfield Theatre on Saturday.

Their present day line-up consists of original band members Eddie and Chris Amoo plus Dave Smith.

Now a vocal trio, instead of a four-piece, they are accompanied by their own five-strong backing band.

With an entry in the Guinness Book of Hit Records as the UK's best-selling black group, they are still thrilling devoted fans and bringing their disco-inspired sound to a younger generation – and they promise to get the audience up dancing with a performance of all their hits, plus a medley of classic covers including Kool and the Gang's Ladies' Night and Celebration, Good Times by Chic and Ain't No Stoppin' Us Now by McFadden & Whitehead, as well as a cover of a more recent hit – Justin Timberlake's Cry Me A River.

"There's always going to be a sense of nostalgia about our music because it will never die," explains singer Eddie Amoo, "but we also like to incorporate outside contemporary chart influences as well."

There is nothing like this dame

EYE IN THE SKY (15, 102 mins)

THE art of modern warfare is no longer consigned to battlefields on the ground.

Devastating missile attacks, pinpointed by drones, have allowed politicians to strike at the heart of supposed terrorist networks without having to stare into the whites of the enemies' eyes.

Yet with greater power comes crushing responsibility – all technology is prone to error and one misplaced explosion can be exploited as propaganda to intensify the cycle of violence.

"Revolutions are fuelled by postings on YouTube," observes one nervous politician in Eye In The Sky, an intelligent and timely thriller that asks if there is such a thing as acceptable collateral damage in the pursuit of global freedom.

Gavin Hood's nerve-racking film, tightly scripted by Guy Hibbert, doesn't have the answer to that complex moral conundrum.

Instead, events on screen put the characters – and us – through the emotional wringer as a joint American and British task force decides if the slaughter of one innocent child is a tolerable consequence of neutralising a jihadist cell.

Operation Cobra has been tracking radicalised British men and women linked to the Somali group al-Shabaab. One high-profile target, Susan Danford (Lex King), is under surveillance at a house in Kenya, monitored by agents including Jama Farah (Barkhad Abdi).

Lieutenant General Frank Benson (Alan Rickman) takes control of the operation from London, while Foreign Secretary James Willett (Iain Glen), who is at an arms fair in Singapore, watches a live video feed from a US drone piloted by Steve Watts (Aaron Paul) in Nevada.

Decision: Helen Mirren

At a command base in Sussex, Colonel Katherine Powell (Helen Mirren) has a direct link to Watts and explains that the objective is "to capture, not kill".

When covert footage reveals targets in the house are wearing suicide vests primed for an imminent attack, priorities change.

The clock is ticking and politicians on both sides of the Atlantic deliberate.

Meanwhile, Watts and his spotter, Airman Carrie Gershon (Phoebe Fox), notice a nine-year-old girl (Aisha Takow) selling bread near the target house, who would be killed in a missile strike.

Eye In The Sky is dedicated to Rickman. He delivers a tightly coiled performance as the go-between who needs political and legal assent before issuing his command.

Mirren is in equally imperious form while Paul exudes the anguish of a man wrestling with the consequences of defying orders.

Hibbert's lean script envisions an almost tragi-comic contrast between the Brits, who repeatedly refer up the chain of command, and the unflinching Americans.

This gallows humour dissipates some of the suffocating tension.

With the precision of a drone missile, Hood's film begs uncomfortable questions about matters of life and death when they can be distilled to the squeeze of a joystick trigger in an air-conditioned cubicle thousands of miles from the intended kill zone.

STAMP DUTY.... A HELP FOR FIRST TIME BUYERS?

From 1st April, stamp duty rates are now 3 percentage points higher for buy to let investors than for those buying properties to live in. Investors will have to pay thousands of £s extra in tax when they buy properties following the implementation of a special 'Landlord' stamp duty tax rate.

So for example the tax bill on a buy to let property costing £250,000 will increase from £2,500 to £10,000. This same increased stamp duty rate applies to buying other second properties such as holiday homes in which the owners do not intend to live full time.

Will this new stamp duty situation result in making it easier for first time buyers to get a foot on the property ladder?

It should certainly provide first time buyers with a significant edge as buy to let investors will have to factor in the extra stamp duty cost when making an offer on a property.

It has been an extremely frustrating time for both parents of 'live at home' 20 and 30+ year olds and of course young people themselves, who have been squeezed out of the market by investors acquiring flats for the buy to let market at ever increasing prices.

Whilst the stamp duty change does not significantly address the question of affordability, it may just give our first time buyers the advantage they need to be able to acquire their first homes.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not alternative.
- To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', ('T') etc. in the advertisement.
3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
  - (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
  - (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
  - (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for reparation or allowances.
8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
  - (1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
  - (2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.
16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category

All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection

The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

Attitude - but at a high price

By Ed Wiseman

THE DS brand is one of the youngest and least understood on British roads. Intended as an upmarket spin-off from Citroen, DS began life selling upgraded versions of existing models from the popular French carmaker. Now, though, it has truly begun the process of building its own name, identity and style – the latter being immensely important to this fledgling carmaker.

One of the company's aims is to tap into the idea of French luxury. It does this by using high-end materials, including innovative aesthetic features, and emphasising individuality and customisation. The latest addition to their stable is the DS3 Cabrio, a stylish little roll-top that will compete with the likes of the Mini Convertible.

It looks like nothing else on the road, let alone the supermini segment. Strong, assertive lines and in-your-face decorative touches make this one of the only small cars guaranteed to turn heads. The fact that this is a cabriolet (albeit not a fully-open convertible) gives this car a bold attitude.

The ability to personalise your DS is something the company is proud of. With millions (literally) of possible combinations across the whole DS3 range, you're likely to build yourself a unique car if you delve into the almost-endless options list. Fun little additions like a basic sketch of some Parisian architecture on the dashboard give you something to look at – valuable in a world dominated by underwhelmingly grey car interiors.

It's a small car, but the DS does let itself down a bit in the practicality stakes. The firm claims that the DS can transport five adults, but they'd all be fairly cramped. The driver sits in an unusual position, which might not suit taller (or wider) individuals. A lack of cupholders is noticeable, and the £100 optional arm rest obstructs the handbrake and, to an extent, the gear stick.

Still, the boot is larger than that of the Mini Convertible and as an urban runaround, the DS presents a good combination of style and space. If you want out-and-out functionality, look elsewhere.

The petrol DS3 Cabrio is an immediately likeable car with a pretty engine note – important in a car with a folding roof. The steering is light and responsive, enough to rival the Mini's handling. Opening the roof almost entirely eliminates the already meagre rear visibility, though.

The ride quality is adequate around town, but on high-speed roads with potholes, you begin to notice that this is a small car rather than the old-fashioned French saloon it sometimes feels like. DS uses the word "hyper-comfort" to describe the trade-off between driving pleasure and conventional physical ease. On the tatty, pockmarked surfaces of British motorways, there's nothing hyper-comfortable about the DS3.

Some say pricey, others say premium – the fact remains that the fit and finish of the DS3 is superior to most other cars in the segment. Throw in the open roof and you have a fun, sophisticated, upmarket car, which you can expect to pay more than £20,000 for. Prices start at about £18,000, but can soar above £26,000 if you tick all the options.

That puts it broadly in line with the Mini Convertible, but twice as pricey as non-cabrio cars of comparable sizes. If you're looking for a practical city car for less, perennial favourites such as the Ford Fiesta might be attractive alternatives.

What's more, the DS3 doesn't deliver the most scintillating driving experience. The Mazda MX-5 is a far more engaging car to have fun with if you can sacrifice those paltry rear seats – and costs about the same.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category

All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection

The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

Dear Susan

We knew you'd like to see this article in The Advertiser about your old school and a reunion they are planning.

Although you're far away did you know you can view the newspaper online via the digital edition at any time of the week?

There are often articles about the very area you grew up in and people you may know.

We can keep sending the paper to you but this seems such a simple and convenient way to stay in touch with all the news from where you grew up.

Love to all, Mum xxx

Personal Assistant Service

The Barnet Group is developing a Personal Assistant Service, PA Choices, which aims to match people who are in receipt of direct payments with personal assistants who are able to support them on a day to day basis.

What is a personal assistant (PA)?

A personal assistant is someone who is employed to provide support to an individual who has a social care need enabling that person to live in their own home, independently, for longer.

A personal assistant will carry out tasks required by the person employing them; from supporting the person to get up, washed and dressed, to carrying out every day domestic tasks, or supporting the person to get out and about.

Are you interested in becoming a PA?

The key skills needed to be a PA are the ability to listen, to be flexible and a willingness to learn and respond.

The job can be very flexible, offering part-time and full time work on different days and at different times. Some people become a personal assistant with flexible hours whilst also working in an entirely different job.

The role is suitable for people from all walks of life, from someone in college who may only want to work evenings or weekends, to someone who is retired and may only want to work a few hours a week.

ALLI'S DELIGHT AT WIN OVER UNITED

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

DELE ALLI expressed his relief after Tottenham Hotspur eventually managed to claim a 3-0 victory at home to Manchester United on Sunday to keep alive their slim chances of winning the Premier League title.

Leicester City's 2-0 win at Sunderland earlier in the day had seen the table-toppers temporarily move ten points clear, and for much of this match it looked as if Spurs would be unable to reduce the gap back to seven points as they struggled to break down a stubborn United side.

However, they suddenly cut loose during a dramatic seven-minute spell in the second half which saw Alli, Toby Alderweireld and Erik Lamela all find the net to give them the win.

"It was important that I put that one away," Alli said. "I've missed a few chances in recent games and in training, as everyone will tell you, but it was important that we scored the first goal and didn't let them get the lead."

"It was a dominant performance from the team, and we knew that if we stuck to the game plan and stayed patient then we'd get the win."

"It was frustrating at times, but it was important to stay patient and stay focused. It was important to take the chances when they came and fortunately we managed to do that. It was a good performance, but we've got to put that behind us now and move on to the next one."

"It's important now that we don't change anything. From the start of the season we've just focused on each game individually and it's important that we keep doing that. Whatever happens it's been a great season for us, and we'll keep fighting to the end."

With just five matches remaining this season, Spurs need Leicester to suffer a dramatic slump in form if they are to be crowned champions for the first time since 1961, but head coach Mauricio Pochettino believes that the players showed that they have far from given up hope of securing the title.

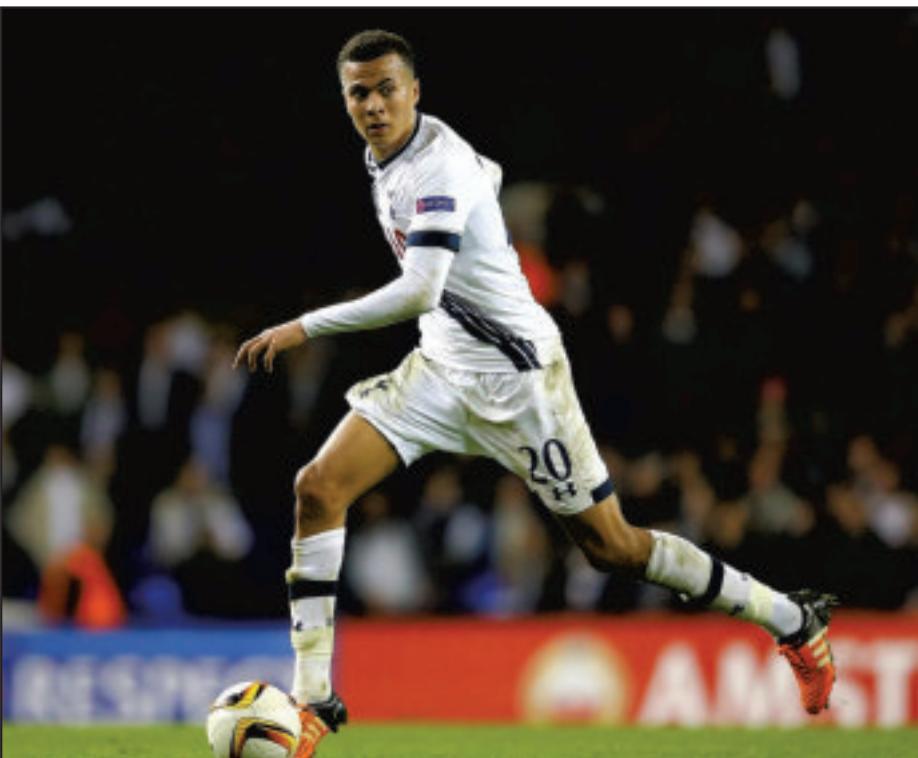

"I think it's true we sent a message that we are there, waiting and fighting," he said. "If Leicester fail we need to stay there, it's important. Seven points is a difficult gap to reduce, but we need to believe."

"Performances and results like this one show that this team believes. We believe and we still fight, the motivation is massive and we need to try to get points and arrive at the end of the season with the possibility of winning the title."

"A 3-0 win against United is fantastic. I think the performance was perfect. I was very pleased with the second half and full credit to all the players because they put on a fantastic show."

"It was difficult because at the beginning of the day Leicester won, United were then stuck in the traffic meaning that the game kicked off 30 minutes late and that changed our habits."

"It was difficult in the beginning, but in the second half we showed a very good performance, and I feel proud of our players."

Breaking the deadlock: Dele Alli scored Spurs' first goal in their victory against Manchester United

Olympic champ gives cycling masterclass

A TRIO of Wood Green teenagers insist a cycling masterclass from Sir Bradley Wiggins has boosted their confidence on the bike ahead of riding 46 miles as part of the Prudential RideLondon.

Fifteen-year-old twins Samuel and Michael Antwi and 17-year-old Daniella Afriyieasare met the seven-time Olympic medallist and 2012 Tour de France champion at the launch event of the Prudential RideLondon, ahead of taking to the capital's roads on July 31.

The Prudential RideLondon-Surrey 46 is a new event for this year which is open to 16 to 18-year-olds and is looking to build on the legacy of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, and will follow a route on closed roads through the city and into the Surrey countryside.

And for the Antwi twins, who attend Heartlands High School in Station Road, Wood Green, the event is the perfect opportunity to get London's youngsters involved in cycling.

"It was great to meet Bradley Wiggins," said Samuel, who along with his fellow youngsters will be raising money for charity Teach First along the way. "We remember him from when he won Sports Personality of the Year in 2012 and he is an inspiration to us all."

"I love cycling, and sport is my thing because I love feeling fit and strong, and I enjoy seeing people being introduced to sport and getting them on their feet."

"We're looking forward to doing the bike ride, but we know it's going to be tough and our coach is going to put us through a lot of training."

"It is quite daunting but I think we will be able to push through as a team and at the end of the day, we will feel like we have really achieved something."

The trio will join thousands of amateur cyclists riding past the capital's famous landmarks during the Prudential RideLondon, and Afriyieasare, who is a pupil at St Thomas More School in Glendale Avenue, Wood Green, insists the opportunity to meet Sir Bradley was the inspiration she and many other young people need to get involved with sport.

"I heard about the Prudential RideLondon in an assembly at school and it was something that my best friend and I were interested in, so we decided to get involved," she said. "It was great to meet Bradley because I have never met anyone who has competed at the Olympic Games before, and he has achieved some extraordinary things."

"People like Bradley are role models to us, and if other teenagers can see me getting involved with this ride, hopefully it will inspire them to do something as well."

The Prudential RideLondon-Surrey 46 takes place on July 31. For more information or to enter visit prudentialridelondon.co.uk

Borough banish relegation threat

HARINGEY BOROUGH can look forward to another season in Ryman League Division One North after their fight against relegation reached a successful conclusion over the past week.

Although Borough lost 3-0 at home to play-off hopefuls AFC Hornchurch on Saturday and followed this by being held 1-1 at Aveley on Monday night, other results went in their favour to ensure that they are now certain to avoid finishing in the bottom three.

However, Borough endured a difficult day against Hornchurch as they suffered their heaviest defeat since being beaten 4-1 by the same opponents back in November.

The visitors took control of the match from the start and Abs Thompson had already gone close before they broke the deadlock when David Knight's cross was volleyed into the net by Nicky Symons.

Borough keeper Harry Palmer made a terrific double save to thwart Dave Collis and Alex Bentley, while only a superb last-ditch challenge from Ross Dedman prevented Knight from doubling Hornchurch's lead after he rounded Palmer.

The one-sided nature of the contest continued and it came as little surprise when the visitors doubled their advantage – George Purcell finding the net with a low shot from a free-kick the best part of 30 yards out.

Palmer did well to turn a Thompson shot round the post prior to the interval, while the keeper had to be alert again to save Knight's header in the early stages of the second half.

Paul Goodacre had a header cleared off the line as Hornchurch continued to dominate, and the third goal finally arrived when Knight latched on to Collis' long punt downfield and calmly lobbed the ball over the advancing Palmer and into the net.

Borough offered little attacking threat at any stage during Saturday's match, but they began in a far more positive fashion at Aveley and took an early lead through Leon Wilson.

They were unable to hold on to their advantage though and Andres Tobon's goal four minutes into the second half ensured that the points were shared.

Haringey Borough host Soham Town Rangers on Saturday (3pm).
